Finally this is it. Despite all challenges and struggling, I have finally completed my studies.

First of all, I would like to acknowledge Prof. dr. Wim J. Quax who welcomed me to his department. I thank you very much for your continued support throughout my studies, your critical views on my manuscripts and to let me join the IAPB 2010 conference. This conference was very significant to my subject and it was the highlight of my PhD studies. I would also like to thank Prof. dr. Oliver Kayser for this PhD project.

My deep gratitude goes to Prof. dr. Jacques Hille for his supervision, guidance, and patience in assisting me in the field of plant tissue cultures and the transformation work. I also thank you for your critical views on my manuscripts. I did enjoy the coffee breaks and our chat in the coffee room. I am grateful to Dr. Herman J. Woordenbag for being my co-promotor because of his help organizing the paper works, the public defense ceremony, and translating the summary in Dutch language. You were always thorough with your feedback on my manuscripts. I do appreciate your structured writing, level of detail and critical views on my manuscripts.

I would also like to express my thanks to Prof. dr. J.T.M. Elzenga for his support and hospitality in plant physiology department and also for being one of the reading committee members. My special thanks go to the other members of the reading committee, Prof. dr. Robert Verpoorte and Prof. dr. E.M.J. Verpoorte for their time and remarks on my thesis.
