I love this journey of coming to the Netherlands for my doctoral study. At the end of the four delightful and fulfilling years, I would like to extend my gratitude to those who have brought me a lot of fun, encouragement, support, help, and love along the way.

My deepest gratitude goes to my supervisors, Prof. Wander Lowie and Dr. Sake Jager. We three had great communication, great inspiration, and great collaboration. I was so lucky to have you by my side and benefit from both of your expertise. You two provided me with not only skilful directions, critical comments, valuable input, but also Dutch humour and warm greetings. You motivated and inspired me with interesting ideas and rigorous scholarship, dedicatedly guided me through all the tough times of study design, data collection, data analysis, and article writing. Without your supervision, I could not have finished this thesis and become a qualified researcher.

I am also deeply grateful to Prof. Chuming Wang. As early as when I embarked on the applied linguistics research, you illustrated to me how to be an independent thinker and a good applied linguist with your passion of pursuing originality and your expertise in SLA research. My deep gratefulness also goes to Dr. Qi Xu. You gave me constructive suggestions on academic writing, research work, and career possibility. You also shared your own learning experiences and life wisdom with me and always encouraged me to positively see myself. It has been a great experience to work with you on papers and in conferences.

I would especially like to thank several important experts who have given me immense help during the past years. Prof. Steven Thorne is undoubtedly one of the most influential linguists whom I admire. You gave me an insightful overview of PhD studies to be conducted; you were very willing to share your knowledge. I feel so lucky to have met you right after I started my doctoral study. Prof. Wei Ren coached me to get familiar with academic writing by guiding me step by step in our collaboration of review writing. Drs. Marijke Wubbolts kindly helped me with the translation of the dissertation summary into Dutch.

I am grateful to all those who helped me modify the research design and collect the data, especially Prof. Agnes Kukulska-Hulme, Prof. Geoffrey Sockett, Prof. Marjolijn Verspoor, Prof. Gao Huaiyong. My special thanks go to the students at Sichuan Agricultural University who participated in my studies.

I would also like to thank our PhD support group members, with whom I shared a lot of cheerful moments at group meetings and at conferences: Jelle Brouwer, Susanne Dekker, Marita Everhardt, Steven Gilbers, Wim Gombert, Loes Groen, Li Gu, Ana Pot, Audrey Rousse-Malpat, Pouran Seifi, Bregtje Seton, Giulia Sulis, Floor van den Berg, Mara van der Ploeg, Vass Verkhodanova, and May Wu. How nice it was to have you with me!

I want to thank my coolest scientist friends: Junping Hou, Ting Huang, Huimin Ke, Minghui Li, Yichen Liu, Bei Tian, Cheng Wang, Yingjie Wang, Hanjing Yu, Ying Zhou. You guys made my life in Groningen colourful and really enjoyable.

最后, 感谢我的爸爸妈妈还有亲爱的弟弟一路走来给我的爱, 支持和鼓励. 我爱你们!
