University of Groningen

Values, culture, and national identity in economics

de Wit, Juliette

DOI:
10.33612/diss.193620269

IMPORTANT NOTE: You are advised to consult the publisher's version (publisher's PDF) if you wish to cite from it. Please check the document version below.

Document Version
Publisher's PDF, also known as Version of record

Publication date:
2021

Link to publication in University of Groningen/UMCG research database

Citation for published version (APA):
de Wit, J. (2021). Values, culture, and national identity in economics: perspectives on the relation between the individual and the collective. [Thesis fully internal (DIV), University of Groningen]. University of Groningen, SOM research school. <https://doi.org/10.33612/diss.193620269>

Copyright

Other than for strictly personal use, it is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

The publication may also be distributed here under the terms of Article 25fa of the Dutch Copyright Act, indicated by the "Taverne" license. More information can be found on the University of Groningen website: <https://www.rug.nl/library/open-access/self-archiving-pure/taverne-amendment>.

Take-down policy

If you believe that this document breaches copyright please contact us providing details, and we will remove access to the work immediately and investigate your claim.

Downloaded from the University of Groningen/UMCG research database (Pure): <http://www.rug.nl/research/portal>. For technical reasons the number of authors shown on this cover page is limited to 10 maximum.

Values, culture, and national identity in economics

Perspectives on the relation between the individual and the collective

Juliette R. de Wit

Published by
University of Groningen, Groningen, the Netherlands

Cover design: Carine Welling, carine.welling@skynet.be
Cover image: Adobe Stock
Portrait picture: Carolien Koetsier, carolienkoetsier.nl

Provided by thesis specialist Ridderprint, ridderprint.nl
Printing: Ridderprint
Layout and design: Robin Weijland, persoonlijkproefschrift.nl

© 2021 Juliette R. de Wit

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system of any nature, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, now known or hereafter invented, including photocopying or recording, without prior written permission of the publisher.

university of
 groningen

Values, culture, and national identity in economics

Perspectives on the relation between the individual and the collective

PhD thesis

to obtain the degree of PhD at the University of Groningen
on the authority of the Rector Magnificus Prof. C. Wijmenga
and in accordance with the decision by the College of Deans.

This thesis will be defended in public on

Thursday 2 December 2021 at 16:15 hours

By

Juliette Renée de Wit

Born on 25 August 1991
in Voorburg, the Netherlands

Supervisors

Prof. B. P. de Bruin

Prof. S. Beugelsdijk

Co-supervisor

Dr. C. Lisciandra

Assessment Committee

Prof. E. M. Sent

Prof. H. Garretsen

Prof. T. W. G. van der Meer

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Solving puzzles ran like a thread through my years at the University of Groningen. It was probably one of the main reasons to pursue this PhD: a job in which you can think and reflect on academic puzzles sounded like a dream come true!

Having a background in economics and philosophy, and an interest that moved beyond these two disciplines, I also faced my own personal puzzle: Was I an economist or philosopher? Where did I fit in? Already in 2014 I wrote in my application letter to the research master in Economics at the University of Groningen: “Who would I really like to become: a philosopher, an economist, or a combination of the two?” Even though I wanted to pursue my studies in economics, I was also convinced that the “interdisciplinary point of view will be most fruitful in my opinion”. At that time, I did not realize I had already solved my puzzle: after five years of research, it would indeed be the conclusion of my thesis (check the last sentence on page 189).

Many people contributed to a solution to the puzzles—academic and otherwise—I encountered during my PhD. I would like to thank several people in particular.

First and foremost I would like to thank my supervisors, Boudewijn de Bruin, Sjoerd Beugelsdijk, and Chiara Lisciandra. Looking back at our collaboration, it has been inspiring, motivating, and super fun. You played an important role in my life over the past years, and it will be strange to see this change once I have defended my thesis. I will miss our meetings, and hope we can find another way to continue them in the future.

Boudewijn, I want to thank you for your support, encouragement, and ever sharp eye. You were one of the first economists that I met who also had an interest in philosophy (and well beyond). This opened my eyes and motivated me to pursue a PhD. Even though we did not work together on a paper—I sure hope that we will do so someday in the future—you taught me many valuable (life)lessons. Sjoerd, even though the first time we met was perhaps not the best introduction, the time that followed more than made up for that. I am grateful that you wanted to supervise me, as your knowledge and enthusiasm have been important for my projects. Our meetings lifted my spirits and have been a source of academic inspiration. Yet I will especially remember our conversations on many other (related) topics. Chiara, I am very proud of the article that we published together. Thank you for your guidance during my first steps into academia.

I want to thank the members of the reading committee: Harry Garretsen, Tom van der Meer, and Esther-Mirjam Sent, for taking the time to read my thesis and for the stimulating discussion during my defense. I would also like to express my gratitude to Frederico Giesenow and Jakob de Haan for your collaboration and co-authorship. I enjoyed working together with you. Mariko Klasing, Robbert Maseland, and Milena Nikolova, thank you for your helpful comments to my working papers. They were beneficial for this thesis too.

I am indebted to the colleagues that I worked with at the SCP, amongst others Joep de Hart, Pepijn van Houwelingen, Sander Muns, Sander Steijn, and Maroesjka Versantvoort. I am grateful that you have given me the opportunity to be part of the national identity project; I have very good memories of the six months that we worked together. Special thanks to Jurjen Iedema for helping me to get the code in Mplus running. I also want to thank Nick Wuestenenk and Djurre Das for being motivating and supportive office mates. It was very nice to know that we would meet every day at the office, whilst living in a city where I did not know many other people.

I also want to thank my colleagues at the Economics, Econometrics, and Finance and Global Economics and Management departments at the University of Groningen. In particular, I want to thank the ethics group: Job de Grefte, Marijke Leliveld, Chiara Lisciandra, Barend de Rooij (shout out to our podcast!), Wim Westerman, and Raymond Zaal. The ethics courses have been a constant factor over the past years. I enjoyed working together with you. You showed me the tricks of the trade. Grietje Pol, I also want to thank you for your support and assistance over the past years.

Of course, I could not forget to thank my fellow PhDs of the ninth floor, and at the EEF and GEM departments. You really made the past years special to me. In jobs like ours, where we work individually most of the time, having people surrounding you that you can rely on and have fun with are not to be underestimated. Thank you for the many memories that are worth remembering. With the danger of forgetting to mention some names, I will only thank some people in particular here.

Johannes, I am so glad that we met on the first day of our research master and got to start our PhDs in the same office. Over the years, we've developed a friendship that is very dear to me. I miss your enthusiasm and supportive pep-talks over coffee and beer now that you're living abroad. Maite, you are both a good friend as well as an inspiration. I admire your strong work ethic, optimism, and kindness. Thank you for having my back over the past years, I know I could always count on you. Femke, our friendship is one of the few positive outcomes of the covid pandemic. I love your energy, witty humor, and confidence. Thank you for motivating me to submit the thesis, in spite of the fact I found it difficult to let go. Nikki, even though we did not finish our PhDs together, I still consider you as part of the group. I admire that you chose your own path. It challenges me to do the same. Adriana and Shan, during the two years that we shared an office meeting you was always something to look forward to. Thank you for sharing stories about your home country with me; it gave me the opportunity to get to know you even better. Daan (F), it was such a nice experience to play squash in Groningen together, and later in the Hague. They were a good counter balance to our job. Tobi, thank you for introducing me to bouldering and climbing. I miss our get-togethers after work.

I want to thank my friends and former housemates at Pimpernel. Griëlla, Jacco, Jorinde, Linde, Margriet—you were my home in Groningen. We went through a lot together, but the many nice memories outweigh everything else. Thank you for your support over the past years. Yentl, you introduced me to vierkante cirkels. Your enthusiasm for “odd” objects is remarkably contagious. Thank you for sharing your down-to-earth perspective on life and putting some of my PhD struggles in perspective. Jasmyn, you know me for more than half of my life now. Even though our paths are sometimes different, I am glad we always find each other again. I am grateful for your support, advice, and listening ear.

Carine, thank you for the beautiful cover design. I enjoyed having a peak behind the scenes of graphic design and the many talks that we suddenly had due to our shared project. It’s very special that you wanted to do this for me.

Andre, Jenny, and Ramon, I want to thank you for giving me a second home. You welcomed me with open arms from the moment Roelof and I met. I look forward to the many years to come, and to the various new skills that I can learn from you, such as welding, woodworking, and sharpening my ice skates. Vin and Fie, even though I’m your elder sister, in many ways you are wiser than I am. Thank you for your jokes, support, and positive vibes. When you are there, I always feel at home. Pap and mam, thank you for your unconditional guidance, advice, and loving cuddles. I feel that we are lucky to have been brought up in such a warm home. Pap, I hope that you also see something of yourself in my work. I could not have done this if it weren’t for you. Mam, your creativity and boundless energy to explore new crafts are something that I admire and aspire. Thank you for giving us a strong base that allows us to pursue the things we like to do.

Lastly, I want to thank Roelof. I admire how you view the world. Even though we do not always agree, you show me a perspective that is very dear to me. A perspective that does not (necessarily) involve numbers, but highlights the important things in life.

Juliette
Meppel, October 2021

CONTENTS

1. Introduction	11
2. Measuring norms using social survey data	29
3. Reconciling the individual and societal level in comparative cultural analysis: An archetypal analysis of values and norms across 76 countries	71
4. An empirical analysis of the tension between ethnic and civic sources of identification with the nation state	125
5. Implications and general conclusions	185
References	191
Dutch summary	209
English summary	217
CV	224