A few weeks before I obtained my Master's Degree I phoned Peter Kooreman to inquire about the grade for my final exam. Quickly the conversation headed in a different direction and he asked me if I had ever considered doing a PhD. I answered that I had considered it but that I did not really see myself doing that. He then asked if he could forward my e-mail address to a colleague nonetheless. I replied that I did not mind. A few days later I received an e-mail about a project on "Environmental Issues in Corporate Social Responsibility" and Elmer Sterken and Bert Scholtens were involved. The project appealed to me as it was completely different from what I had been doing during my studies. So I thought let me give it a try. In hindsight, I can say it was the right decision and I am very happy with where I am right now. Therefore, the first person I would like to thank is Peter Kooreman for noticing me as a potential PhD-candidate and for persuading me into engaging in this project. I would also like to thank NWO for funding the project.

There are many people that have been supportive, helpful or simply a pleasant colleague during my PhD period, and I am very grateful for that. There are some people that I would like to thank in particular. First of all I would like to thank the members of the doctoral dissertation committee: Arnoud Boot, Ruud Koning and Richard Tol. Furthermore, I look back on pleasant conversations with my roommates over the years; Annette Zeilstra, Ward Romp, and Ewout Frankema. Also, I would like to thank my fellow PhD-students Pim Heijnen, Allard van der Made, and Bastiaan Overvest for many interesting discussions. I appreciated the company and support of Ilko Naaborg during the early stages of my PhD. Some colleagues have given very useful feedback on my work and I would especially like to thank Marco Haan, Linda Toolsema, Bert Schoonbeek, Ben Heijdra, and José Luis Moraga González for their time. Gratitude goes to participants of: the SURED 2004 and SURED 2006 conference held in Ascona, Switzerland; the "Forschungsseminar "Quantitative Wirtschaftsforschung" Sommersemester" 2005 in Hamburg, Germany; the 4th International Conference on Corporate Governance, 2006, Birmingham, United Kingdom; the XV "Tor Vergata" Conference on "Money, Finance and Growth", 2006, Rome, Italy; the "Brown Bag Seminars", 2003 and 2006, Groningen, the Netherlands; the NAKE Research Day 2006, Amsterdam, the Netherlands; the FBA seminar, 2007, Groningen, the Netherlands; the "Tjalling C. Koopmans Seminar Series", 2007, Utrecht, the Netherlands; the CORE conference, 2007, Milan, Italy; Osaka University Forum 2007, Groningen, the Netherlands; the Workshop on CSR and SRI, 2007, Umeå, Sweden. I want to thank EIRIS and in particular Silke Riedel en Kirein Franck for providing the data on social responsibility that is used in this thesis. I am very grateful to my family, Erie, Geartsje, Romke and Erika, for supporting me over the last five years, especially during stressful times.

Finally I would like to thank Joy for her love and care. We have been through a lot together the past five years, but you have always supported me and my work.

Groningen,

November 2007,
