This dissertation is the outcome of my work at the Faculty of Economics of the University of Groningen and the School of Economics and Business Administration of Cantho University in Vietnam, which was part of Project No. 2 within the NUFFIC-MHO cooperation between Cantho University and Dutch institutions of higher education. Many people have been of great help in completing this dissertation. I would like to thank all of them, both in person and in these acknowledgements. Unfortunately, it is not possible to mention all on this page.

I am grateful to Professor Frans Tempelaar for giving me invaluable advice on so many issues. My special thanks are devoted to Ger Lanjouw and Niels Hermes, who have been so helpful that I could not have finished this dissertation without their help. Moreover, Ger Lanjouw has done everything possible to make my stay as easy as it could ever be. Niels Hermes has greatly encouraged me, especially when we, together with Ger Lanjouw, were in Lake Tahoe, Nevada, shortly after I started this dissertation. I would also like to thank Professor Robert Lensink for his interest in my work and his very useful comments, and Professors Lex Hoogduin and Hans Visser for reading the manuscript.

I like to extend my gratitude to Professor Caspar Schweigman, Reike Tempelaar, Berend Vis and Marjo for their concern and generosity, and to Pieter Boele for his friendship. Many members of the Office for International Relations, especially Madeleine Gardeur-Veltman, Anita Veltmaat, Gonny Lakerveld, Erik Haarbrink and Wiebe Zijlstra, also deserve my special thanks, so does Arthur de Boer of the Center for Development Studies for his help in different occasions, including the layout of this book. I am indebted to Phuong, Thanh, Thanh, Hao and Duy for assisting me in the data collection. I also owe my gratitude to all my friends for love and support.

Last, but foremost, I am very grateful to the Lanjouw family, Ger, Leidy, Harm-Jan and Willem, for being so hospitable that I have always felt at home being with them. I would also like to extend my deepest gratitude to my parents for teaching me how to behave in a decent manner and for encouraging me to pursue my education as far as possible and to my siblings for their constant support. All this book is dedicated to them.

	8.4.4 Age	142
8.5	Conclusions	145

Chapter 9 Uncertainty and investment

9.1	Introduction	147
9.2	An overview of the empirical study and the data set	148
9.3	Measuring uncertainty	149
9.3.1	Coefficient of variation of the expected sales (CEV)	149
9.3.2	Another uncertainty variable: DEVAS	150
9.4	Measuring irreversibility	151
9.4.1	Causes of irreversibility for private rice mills	151
9.4.2	Possibility to resell used rice-milling machinery	152
9.4.3	Resale price of used rice-milling machinery	153
9.4.4	Proxy for irreversibility of used rice-milling machinery	153
9.5	Results and discussions	155
9.5.1	Entire sample	155
9.5.2	High uncertainty versus low uncertainty	157
9.5.3	High irreversibility versus low irreversibility	160
9.5.4	Competition	161
9.5.5	Large rice mills versus small rice mills	164
9.5	Conclusions	165
	Appendix 9.1 Calculation of uncertainty variables	167
	Appendix 9.2 Robustness of the irreversibility proxies	170

PART 4 CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONSChapter 10 Conclusions, recommendations and further research

10.1	Introduction	173
10.2	Conclusions	173
10.2.1	Financial market imperfections and investment of private rice millers	173
10.2.2	Uncertainty and investment of private rice millers	174
10.3	Recommendations	176
10.3.1	Improving access of private rice millers to credit	176
10.3.2	Reducing uncertainty and irreversibility	177
10.4	Suggestions for further research	177
