ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Eryn Liem was born in 's-Gravenhage (the Hague), the Netherlands, as the youngest of identical twins on March 14th, 1978. She received her primary education at the Montessori School in Delft and her secondary education at the Christelijk Lyceum Delft, from which she graduated in 1996. In the same year, she started her medical studies at the Catholic University Leuven (KUL) in Leuven, Belgium. During her studies, she attended clinical attachments in Pediatrics and Obstetrics & Gynecology at the Queen's University of Belfast, UK. She received her medical degree in 2003 and subsequently worked as an intern in the Pediatrics departments of the Albert Schweitzer Ziekenhuis in Dordrecht and the Maastad Ziekenhuis in Rotterdam. In 2005 she started the PhD project described in this thesis with prof.dr. P.J.J. Sauer and prof.dr. R.P. Stolk. From 2005 to 2007 she coordinated the collection of anthropometric data and set up a biobank within the TRAILS study (Tracking Adolescents' Individual Lives Survey, principal investigators: prof.dr. J. Ormel and prof.dr. F.C. Verhulst). As part of her PhD training, she attended courses in clinical and genetic epidemiology at the University Medical Center Groningen and the Erasmus University Medical Center in Rotterdam, resulting in registration as an epidemiologist. In 2008, she started her residency in Pediatrics at the University Medical Center Groningen (supervisor: Dr. A.A.E. Verhagen). Currently, she is continuing her residency at the Isala Klinieken, Zwolle (supervisor: Prof.dr. P.L.P. Brand).
