Some people say that gratitude is something we learned from our parents. I realized this is partly true, because I also instruct my children to say 'Thank you' when they for example receive a 'plakje worst' at the supermarket. But when I look back on my PhD studies I am thankful towards a lot of people and I want to express that here not just because my parent learned me to do so, but also to let people know that without them the PhD period would be dull, difficult or even impossible to complete.

First of all I want to thank my promoter Arnold Driessen. Your guidance was precisely what I needed, not looking over my shoulder closely watching my every move, but a more distant supervision with timely discussions to assess the progress of my research. This gave me a feeling of freedom which made my life as a PhD student very pleasant.

Alexej, no need to tell you that I will miss our frequent coffee sessions discussing parenting, science or less interesting topics. Also your help in hunting for jobs was very useful.

Jeanine, thank you very much for your moral support and entertaining conversations (maybe about parenting soon?).

Andy (aka Zht Cheng), your somewhat twisted sense of humor and lack of a social compass provided highly entertaining situations which I'll cherish forever.

Bea en Manon, thank you very much for help with all the paper work. And for the record, I really didn't know I couldn't park my car there ;).

Furthermore I want to thank the rest of the Molmic group for a highly entertaining working environment. If you are really sad I didn't thank you by name, please fill in your name in the next sentence:

And ofcourse thousand times thanks to Without you my life as a PhD student would be a black hole of despair.

Mijn zussen, pap en mam, bedankt voor jullie steun. Ik laat het misschien niet altijd even uitbundig blijken, maar ik ben erg blij (understatement) met jullie. En natuurlijk mijn hele schoonfamilie, of het nu oppassen was, meehelpen met klussen of gewoon gezellig visite, bedankt voor alle hulp.

Myrthe, Robin en Elin! Ook al voel ik me helemaal thuis in de wetenschap, het is op slag allemaal vergeten als ik terugkom van het lab en jullie een dikke knuffel geef.

Ida! Bedankt voor alles! Vooral dat je al mijn eigenaardigheden accepteert en ik ben ervan overtuigd dat we samen nog heel veel gaan lachen :).
