Curriculum Vitae

Remco Stoutenbeek was born in Deventer, the Netherlands, on the 28th of March 1978. After completing secondary school at the Geert Groote College in Deventer in 1996, he started his medical education in Groningen. He obtained a Masters degree in medicine and graduated as a Medical Doctor in August 2003. After a few months of working at the emergency department of Delfzicht hospital in Delfzijl, he started his ophthalmologist training in February 2004 at the University Medical Center Groningen (UMCG), department of Ophthalmology. Work on this thesis had started in 2003 as a scientific program as part of the medical curriculum, and was now resumed under ongoing supervision by dr. Jansonius. In February 2009, he completed his training as ophthalmologist, and currently works in the UMCG as cornea fellow under supervision of drs. Wijdh. After completion of the fellowship, he will continue his practice at the UMCG as a staff member.
