

University of Groningen

Collagens and retinal Müller cells in healthy and diseased vitreoretinal interface

Bu, Shao

IMPORTANT NOTE: You are advised to consult the publisher's version (publisher's PDF) if you wish to cite from it. Please check the document version below.

Document Version

Publisher's PDF, also known as Version of record

Publication date:

2015

Link to publication in University of Groningen/UMCG research database

Citation for published version (APA):

Bu, S. (2015). Collagens and retinal Müller cells in healthy and diseased vitreoretinal interface: the regulatory role of extracellular matrix. [S.n.].

Copyright

Other than for strictly personal use, it is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Take-down policy

If you believe that this document breaches copyright please contact us providing details, and we will remove access to the work immediately and investigate your claim.

Downloaded from the University of Groningen/UMCG research database (Pure): <http://www.rug.nl/research/portal>. For technical reasons the number of authors shown on this cover page is limited to 10 maximum.

Curriculum Vitae

Bu Shao-chong was born in Tianjin, China, in 1978. He studied clinical medicine since 1996 in Tianjin Medical University as a 7-year-course medical student and graduated with a master degree in Ophthalmology in 2003. In July of the same year, he joined Tianjin Medical University Eye Hospital and started his residency training for ophthalmologist. From March 2004 to March 2006, he went to Singapore National Eye Centre and participated in a clinical fellowship training program. In the year end of 2009, he started his PhD project on the “Adhesion proteins in vitreoretinal interface” in the department of ophthalmology, University Medical Center Groningen, the Netherlands. From 2015, he works in Tianjin Medical University Eye Hospital as an ophthalmologist.