That's it. We are done. It is different as I had expected four and a half years ago, but isn't it like this every time? This journey had affected me, changed me, but it is good, change is necessary. I had wanted to do some impact, so I believe my work could have affected at least the people somehow connected to it. At this place, I would like to express my gratitude for accompanying me on this long (sometimes it looks like a never-ending) journey.

Let me start by expressing my gratitude to people that supervised my work all the time and helped me improve my performance in many different ways. I would like to thank to:

- Prof. Sijmen A. Reijneveld, for his supervision, advice, and quick responding in a state of emergency (super-short terms for revisions);
- Assoc. Prof. Jitse P. van Dijk, for sharing his rich experiencing, for his advice and enthusiasm;
- Prof. Andrea Madarasova Geckova, for the opportunity to take a part in this PhD journey, for her courage, and especially for giving me freedom in many things.
- Assoc. Prof. Zuzana Dankulincova Veselska, for the patience that she had not lost even in the darkest times, for being supportive, friendly, always hard-working and trying to find a solution to the problem.

I would like to thank you also to my former colleagues at the Department of Health Psychology and Research Methodology for creating a friendly atmosphere in the workplace. From them, my special thank goes to:

- Peter Kolarcik, PhD., for being my friend. I already miss our never-ending conversations about life, science, the meaning of the whole universe and especially very useful advice about getting married to a random old rich guy or jumping out of the window in hard times - you are a true friend;
- Janka Holubcikova, PhD., for her friendship, many helpful and inspiring conversations we had, bringing me to yoga classes, concerts in Collosseum club, showing me Aggretsuko, for our countless hours of eating delicious food, and the most important, teaching me how to do sushi;
- Mgr. Laura Bitto Urbanova, for a great companion on conferences and study stay, for her great sense of humour and for our crazy times in the shared room at the workplace that had always helped me improve my day;

- Daniela Filakovska Bobakova, PhD., for two years, I believe, when we had been talking together quite openly;
- Mgr. Simona Horanicova, for your effort to make a better day or willingness to listen to complaining;
- Ing. Ivana Borisova, for your sincere interest in people.

My very special thanks go to all members of my family. Especially I would like to express my gratitude to my parents, who supported my dreams, independence and let me choose the life I want to live. I do love you both. To all my friends I also want to say: Thank you and I promise, after the defence, you will never ever hear about my thesis again!

At last, but not at least, I would like to thank my boyfriend Miroslav Fedurco, PhD., who has shown me that a relationship does not have to be a boring waste of time, but a real true connection of two people who share attitudes, ideas and caring for each other. I am also happy that after achieving my PhD degree, the power balance in our relationship will be restored again.
