Gusta Wachter was born in Groningen in 1991. During her bachelor in Human Geography and Spatial Planning at the University of Groningen she studied in Lund (Sweden) for a couple of months. After taking extra courses in Pedagogical Sciences and working on a research project, she started the research master Migration, Ethnic Relations and Multiculturalism at Utrecht University. While obtaining her master degree she worked as a student assistant at the European Research Centre on Migration and Ethnic Relations and did a research internship at the Verwey Jonker Instituut. In 2016 she graduated Cum Laude.

After graduating she started working as a junior researcher at the Municipal Health Office (GGD) in Amsterdam. A year later she joined the Netherlands Interdisciplinary Demographic Institute (NIDI) as a PhD candidate. She participated in several courses and presented her research at different scientific conferences such as the European Population Conference, the IMISCOE Conference, PAA, the Divorce Conference and Dutch Demography Day. Both Statistics Netherlands and the Ministry of Social Affairs and Employment invited her to give a presentation about her research.

Next to her PhD project she also worked as an executive assistant for the European Association for Population Studies (EAPS), was a founding member of the EAPS PhD Network and was on the organizing committee of the European Population Conference 2022. Recently, she started working as a postdoctoral researcher in the ERC funded MyMove project at NIDI.
