Acknowledgements

I would like to use this space to express my gratitude to all people who helped me to write this dissertation successfully. This challenging task would not be accomplished without a great help, support and stimulation from those people around me.

Let me start with expressing my gratitude to people from the University Medical Center Groningen in The Netherlands. I would like to thank particularly to:

- Prof. Sijmen A. Reijneveld – for supervision, excellent guidance and stimulation of my academic performance;
- Assoc. Prof. Jitse P. van Dijk – for keeping our international cooperation alive and for trusting in my research job;
- all members of the Department of Social Medicine, especially to: Femke Abma, Merlijne Jaspers, Andrea Meindersma-Fokkens, Vera Verhage, Manna Reinders-Alma, Karin Kremer-Veldman, Sophie Spoorenberg, Marieke Potijk, Geke Dijkstra, Rietje van der Oort, prof. Ute Bültmann, Roy Stewart, prof. Johan Groothoff, and others who made the working environment very friendly and enjoyable.

Also, I am truly indebted and thankful to many important people here in Slovakia at P.J. Safarik University in Kosice:

- Assoc. Prof. Andrea Madarasová Gecková for supervision, support in my research job, managing my career development and for boosting my potential;
- the Dean of the Medical Faculty Prof. Leonard Siegfried and the Vice dean Prof. Pavol Jarcuska who saw the potential in the research provided by our department and created an academic platform for us;
- Ivana Borysova, Martina Sukenikova, Jarmila Fristikova and Nikol Hendrichovska for handling piles of forms, financial and other administrative work that was too complicated for me to handle and thus eased my academic life;
- Daniela Bobakova, Martina Mergescikova, Martina Behanova, Zuzana Dankulincova-Veselska, Inga Babinska, Jarka Kopcakova, Pavol Mikula, Ferdinand Salonna, Jozef Benka, Ondrej Kalina and Lukas Pitel, my colleagues who were with me “in the same boat” and helped me with the research struggling;
- Andy Billingham and David McLean for correcting my English in my papers.

I would like to show my gratitude also to the elementary school directors, teachers and other school administrative persons who agreed to participate in our study and to arrange everything to make the data collection possible. Similarly I am obliged to our interviewers and our administrator who were willing to travel long distances and spent patiently many hours with our respondents and provided us with a large amount of reliable data. My thanks belong also to our respondents who did not hesitate to answer our questions.

Also, I would like to thank to the member of the Manuscript Committee Prof. dr. W.L.J.M. Devillé, Prof. dr. I. Hutter and Prof. dr. R. Veenstra for the time they spent on evaluating my thesis

In addition, I would like to thank to all people who took part somehow in the process or circumstances related to my research and thesis writing. Those thanks belong to friends who I met in Groningen during my study stays, especially to Dominick Hauck and Roel Bakker and also to friends living in Groningen: Maggie Mazagova, Anka Ocelikova, Hanka Cernecka, Jozef Vincenc Obona, Erik Halza and Menze Kwint who made my study stays in Groningen funny and exciting.

This dissertation would not have been possible unless my parents and my wife Janka would not stand by me and helped me when I needed it the most.
