When I started my PhD study four years ago I could only vaguely imagine how I would spend this time, what my work schedule would look like, and who I would meet. I had to move to Košice and start a new period of my life. I must say it was a pleasant time, filled with ups and downs, with periods of great optimism and then periods of pessimism. Now, approaching the end of my study, I see the many people I have to thank for the help and support they have given me during this time. Some of them are from Groningen, where I have spent many beautiful weeks and which has become my third home (beside Trenčín and Košice). Thank you,

- Prof. Johan W. Groothoff and Prof. Sijmen A. Reijneveld, my promoters, for your great ideas and many important comments that have helped me with my work. You have always been here to share your knowledge and to stop my pessimistic thinking, and this is what I greatly appreciate.

- Dr. Jitse P. van Dijk, my co-promoter, for your enthusiasm and willingness to start new projects in Slovakia, without which this PhD thesis (and many others already completed or now on their way) would never exist. I also want to thank you for your unfailing encouragement to believe more in my work.

- Roy E. Stewart MSc., not only for all that time spent with me talking about statistics and analysing my data, but also for the great social support and friendship which you gave me during my stays in Groningen.

- Dr. Jolanda Tuinstra, for your database and your comments on my article.

- many members of the Department of Social Medicine, University Medical Centre Groningen, for your company and many tasty celebration cakes during my stays in your department.

- my friends from abroad who spent some time with me in Blekerslaan (so-called best international student house in Groningen), for pleasant non-working time with you.

- Peter Ochodnický, for your kind invitations and plenty of help which I needed when I was in Groningen.

I would also like to thank reading committee members Prof. Dr. W.J.A. van den Heuvel, Prof. Dr. R.B. Minderaa, Prof. Dr. R.P.M. Wittek for their helpful comments on my thesis.

In Košice there are also several people who have been with me during my study and have contributed in one way or another to my work. Thank you,

- Dr. Andrea Madarasová Gecková, my co-promotor, for the hours spent with me mainly at the beginning of my study when I felt absolutely overwhelmed by all the information and couldn't find the way out.

Acknowledgements

- Assoc. Prof. Oľga Orosová, for always being open to the collaboration between University of Groningen and PJ Safarik University in Kosice. Thank you very much for the great working environment which you, as a head of our institute, have constantly built up.

- Dr. Iveta Rajničová, for all the important advice which you have given me on my articles and my whole thesis.

- Assoc. Prof. Ivan Žežula, for your answers to my statistical questions.

- Andy Billingham, for the English proofs of all my awkwardly written papers.

- Prof. Vladimír Babčák, Rector of PJ Safarik University and Assoc. Prof. Pavol Sovák, Dean of the Faculty of Science, for your open minds towards this kind of international collaboration.

- all other KISH members, for your company (Ad'a; Eva; Hela; Ivana - for your great help with all that financial and organisational stuff; Jaro; Majka; Marika - for the time shared in our office; Ma'a; Miriam; Nandy - for collaboration which despite misunderstandings was many times very helpful; Ondrej; Táňa; Zuzka, for being nothing other than yourselves).

I would like to thank all heads of participating schools for their co-operation and all students and young adults who filled out our questionnaires.

Mami, tati, Janka, ďakujem za vašu podporu, ktorú ste mi vždy dávali aj za to, že ste mi nikdy nebránili ísť tým smerom, ktorým som ja chcela ísť.

Stanko, thank you not only for the design of this book, but mainly for your willingness to forget your dreams for four years and stay with me all this time in Košice. Without that willingness I would never have started, let alone finished this work. I appreciate it very much.

Košice, august 2006
