Numerical Features of the Book of Proverbs

A New Approach to its Structural Design

Please read the General Introduction

מְשִׁיב דְבַר בְּטָרָם יִשְׁמַע אֲזִנָּתוֹ הִיא לֹוּ וּכְלָמָהּ: (18,13)

Dedicated to the memory of my esteemed and beloved tutor, Professor Berend Gemser

The Structural Design of the Book of Proverbs

Like the Psalter, the Book of Proverbs is a compilation of existing collections, to wit, wisdom sayings. Although the architecture of the book appears at first sight to be fairly straightforward seeing the seven headings, commentators have different views when it comes to defining the overall structure precisely.

Heading 1 (1,1): “The proverbs of Solomon, son of David, king of Israel.”

Heading 2 (10,1): “The proverbs of Solomon.”

Heading 3 (22,17): “The words of the wise” (taken as a heading, as in the Septuagint).*

Heading 4 (24,23): “These also belong to the wise.”

Heading 5 (25,1): “These also are proverbs of Solomon, which the men of Hezekiah....copied.”

Heading 6 (30,1): “The words of Agur, son of Jakeh of Massa.”

Heading 7 (31,1): “The words of Lemuel, king of Massa, which his mother taught him.”

* There is almost general agreement among commentators that the heading within 22,17 disrupts the first colon and is obviously out of place. Following the Septuagint, the words דְּבַרֵי הַכְּמִיִּם, “Words of the wise”, must be moved to the beginning of the verse as the heading, while the word דְּבַרֵי, ‘my words’, should be added in their place. It concerns the words of the first person speaker in 22,17-21. This extra word is indispensable in order to repair the first colon by giving the verb שָׁמַע an object in line with and parallel to לְדַעְתִּי in the second colon. The line after the heading should be read:

תַּטְּ אָזְנוֹךָ וְשָׁמַע דְּבַרֵי וְלִבְךָ תִּשְׁמַע תְּשִׁיב לְדַעְתִּי: “Incline your ear and hear my words and let your mind attend to my knowledge”.

(Compare the New Revised Standard Version in contrast with most versions, which have “hear the words of the wise”).

Further below I shall discuss the far-reaching numerical implications of the extra word for the structure of the text from 22,17 onwards. This correction has proved to be the key to ascertaining the original canonical text.

I shall also present a detailed outline of the overall architecture of the book based on the emended text.

However, let me first give an overview of the various views of the fourteen commentators I was able to consult.

B. GEMSER (Sprüche Salomos, in: HAT 16, 1927/1963², who has dedicated his scholarly life for a great deal to Wisdom):

The Book of Proverbs as a Numerical Composition

Whereas many Biblical books begin with an opening passage which is made up of a number of words that is a multiple of one of the divine name numbers 17 or 26, the Book of Proverbs opens with an introductory passage, 1,1-6, consisting of 37 words (clearly demarcated by a P). See my article "How a holy book begins and ends". Guided by my intuition that 'wisdom' may be a key word, I computed the numerical value of חכמה, 'wisdom', and was not surprised to find that it was $8+11+13+5=37$. A closer examination brought to light that there are no less than twelve passages made up of 37 words (or its multiples), which run as stepping stones through the book as a whole, all of which were obviously devised as coherent groups of sayings:

- 1,1-6, the introduction to the theme of the book: 37 words.
- 1,15-19 a paternal exhortation: My son, stay clear of the way of sinners! 37 words.
- 3,21-35, a paternal exhortation concerning the best way of life: 111 (3×37) words.
- 6,27-35, on the dangers of having an extra marital affair: 74 (2×37) words.
- 11,22-31, on the wealth of the righteous and the wicked: 74 (2×37) words.
- 15,23-32 on considerate social behaviour: 74 (2×37) words.
- 22,7-16 on the treatment of the poor: 74 (2×37) words.
- 24,1-14, a recommendation of wisdom as a guide for leading a decent life: 111 (3×37) words.
- 25,1-13, comparisons and moral lessons at the beginning of the Hezekiah Collection: 111 (3×37) words.
- 29,18-27, general rules for keeping the law: 74 (2×37) words.
- 30,10-14, on slander and cursing: 37 words.
- 30,1-31,9, the sayings of Agur and Lemuel excluding the passage about the stalwart wife: 370 (10×37) words.

These features gain credibility in light of the fact that Ecclesiastes, the follow-up to Proverbs, has 222 (6×37) verses.

The observation concerning the number 37 in the introduction (including the heading) was to me the first indication that Proverbs is a carefully planned numerical composition. This supposition was immediately confirmed by the fact that the cognate key word, חכם, 'wise', appears most strikingly 102 times (6×17), which symbolizes the presence of God in all that is written in the book. But there is more, because the quantitative structural analysis has brought to light the following features which enable us to ascertain the structural design of the book with a great measure of certainty, as I shall demonstrate in more detail further below:

- Chapters 1-7, the introduction and the first collection, including the heading, have 1462 (86×17) words.
- 1,2-7,27, the introduction and the first collection, excluding the heading has 1456 (56×26) words.
- Chapters 1-29, the introduction and the major collections of proverbs have 6396 (246×26) words.
- Chapters 30-31, the minor collections: Words of Agur and Words of Lemuel, have 520 (20×26) words.
- Chapters 1-31, the Book of Proverbs as a whole, have 6916 (266×26) words.

All this shows that the book came into existence by a gradual accretion of materials: the author/redactor began with the heading and the introduction to the theme of the book (1,1-6), on which he imposed the stamp of 'wisdom' by means of 37 words. He continued his writing until 7,27, which he finalized and sealed (with and without the heading) by means of multiples of 17 (1,1-7,27) and 26 (1,2-7,27). Then he compiled the major collections, (8-29), which he rounded off by sealing the entire text of 1-29 as a distinct entity with 246×26 words. Finally, he completed the book by adding two minor collections (30-31), which he adapted and sealed by 20×26 words in order to achieve 6916 (266×26), by which he imposed the stamp of God's presence on the entire book.

This view of the coming into existence of Proverbs implies that we should abandon the idea of successive redactors and glossators that tampered with the text through the ages. In my opinion, there is no reason whatsoever to doubt that the book came into existence in a single, gradual compositional/redactional process despite the fact that chapters 1-29 was rounded off and sealed as a distinct structural entity.

By the way, additional evidence for the unity of 1-29 is provided by the 85 (5×17) occurrences of the key name YHWH which run through the 29 chapters as a unifying thread binding them together – see the table below. Also typical of 1-29 are the 26 cases in which the addressees are specifically identified. The words 'my son' or 'sons', also run as a red thread specifically and only through these 29 chapters to tie them together as a structural unit:

In 1-9: בני, 'my son' (1,8; 1,10; 1,15; 2,1; 3,1; 3,11; 3,21; 4,10; 4,20; 5,1; 5,20; 6,1; 6,3; 6,20; 7,1: 15x).

בנים, 'O sons' (4,1; 5,7; 7,24; 8,32: 4x).

In 10-27: בני, 'my son' (19,27; 23,15; 23,19; 23,26; 24,13; 24,21; 27,11: 7x).

For the use of the numerical value of a key word in the text, see the article in the General Introduction.

Since the book of Proverbs has in its entirety been finalized and sealed by its 6916 (266x26) words, the author/redactor obviously did not endeavour to consistently create additional instances of the numbers 17 and 26 or their multiples in the smaller collections. In comparison with other books they appear in Proverbs only sporadically, about 40% of the words. Some of these may of course be coincidental, but 40 is still a relatively high percentage. Whatever the case may be, in all instances in which they were consciously intended they highlight the passages in question. See the table below, where the relevant passages are marked in bold face.

Here are some striking examples of highlighted passages.

- 2,1-8 with 51 (3x17) words.
- 6,1-11 with 78 (3x26) words.
- 6,12-26 with 119 (7x17) words.
- 8,4-36 with 238 (14x17) words spoken by Lady Wisdom.
- 8,4-36 + 9,10-12 with 260 words altogether spoken by Lady Wisdom.
- 10,1-32 with 234 (9x26) words.
- 12,3-16 with 102 (6x17) words.
- 12,17-23 with 52 (2x26) words.
- 17,16-28 with 104 (4x26) words.
- 18,13-24 with 85 (5x17) words.
- 19,21-29 with 68 (4x17) words.
- 20,1-13 with 102 (6x17) words.
- 22,10-16 with 52 (2x26) words.
- 23,12-35 with 182 (7x26) words.
- 25,1-14 with 119 (7x17) words.
- 26,7-11 with 34 (2x17) words.
- 26,13-19 with 51 (3x17) words.
- 27,3-9 with 52 (2x26) words.
- 27,19-22 with 34 (2x17) words.
- 28,17-22 with 52 (2x26) words.
- 29,1-27 with 204 (12x17) words.
- 30,1-17 with 170 (10x17) words.
- 30,1-28 with 260 (10x26) words.

The weaving of the name of God in this way into the fabric of the book is used as a tool to emphasize its religious character, because it signifies God's presence in this collection of Ancient Israel's wisdom sayings. Such numerical aspects of the book underscore the fact that it is primarily a theological writing. In fact, because all wisdom comes from YHWH, wisdom and religion/theology (that is to say, having faith in YHWH and living in obedience to him) are inextricably tied together, as expressed in the motto of the book (1,7a) and otherwise:

- 1,7a: "The fear of YHWH is the beginning of knowledge",
- 2,5: 'understanding the fear of YHWH' and 'finding the knowledge of God' are indivisibly intertwined,
- 9,10: "The fear of YHWH is the beginning of wisdom, and knowledge of the Holy One is insight",
- 15,33: "Wisdom's discipline is the fear of YHWH",
- 30,3: 'the learning of wisdom' and 'having knowledge of the Holy One' are indivisibly interconnected.

Outline Based on the Headings, Layout Markers, and Numerical Features

Part I	1,1-7,27	Introduction and the Introductory Collection: P	1462 (86x 17) words
Part II	8,1-9,18	Lady Wisdom Contra her Rival Lady Folly: P	385 words
Part III	10,1-22,16	The Main Collection of Solomon's Proverbs: []	2806 words	6396 (246x 26)
Part IV	22,17-24,34	A Collections of Words of the Wise: P	648 words
Part V	25,1-29,27	The Hezekiah Collection of Solomon's Proverbs: P	1095 words

Part VII	31,1-31	Additional Collection, The Words of Lemuel: Col.	219 520 (20x 26) words.

The present arrangement of the text is so cogent that, in my view, it may be qualified as conclusive.

Detailed Quantitative Structural Analysis of the Book of Proverbs

Part I 1,1-7,27 Introduction and an Introductory Collection

It cannot be excluded that some of the passages with 17 or 26 or 37 words (or their multiples) are due to coincidence.

Observation 2 Part I of the book was rounded off as a distinct literary entity and sealed by 1462 (86x17) words. Interestingly, excluding the 6-word heading Part I has 1456 (56x26) words. If this is not simply a matter of coincidence (which I doubt), it demonstrates the meticulous way the scribes counted the words they wrote. By means of the numerical features nine consciously intended collections of seemingly disparate sayings could be identified with a great measure of certainty.

Observation 5 In Part IV 319 of the 648 words (49%) are highlighted by 17 and 26. With the help of the numerical features six consciously intended collections of disparate sayings could be identified. Moreover, 111 of the 649 words (17%) are emphasized by the number 37.

851	Parts I-V	6396 (266x26)	24560	85x	6396		The emended text 1,1-29,27 has 6396 words.

Observation 6 By means of the numerical features of Part V no less than seventeen collections of seemingly disparate sayings could be identified with a great measure of certainty.

In addition, 606 of the 1095 words (55%) are highlighted by 17 and 26. Moreover, 185 (5x37) of the 1095 words (17%) are emphasized by the number 37. The 37 words in 1,1-6 and the 74 (2x37) in 29,18-27 form an inclusion, providing additional evidence that Chapters 1-29 constitute a consciously intended literary entity.

Another piece of evidence for the unity of 1-29 is the 85 (5x17) instances of the name YHWH running as a unifying string through the text from the beginning until this point.

Finally, Chapters 1-29 are rounded off and sealed as a literary entity by its 6396 (266x26) words, and to crown it all, by its 850 (50x17) verses excluding the heading.

Observation 8 Strikingly, the 'Words of Agur' and (a part of) the 'Words of Lemuel' in 30,1-31,9, have altogether 370 (10x37) words, that is to say, excluding the passage about the stalwart wife (31,10-31). This may seem strange, but the exclusion of the passage can easily be explained from a numerical perspective. It had necessarily to be left out, because its 150 words were needed to bring the total number of words in 30-31 to 520 (20x26) and those of the book in its entirety to 6916 (266x26). The deliberate use of 10x 37 words, which is the numerical value of the key word חכמה, can be explained as a scribal technique to bring also the words of Agur and Lemuel under the caption 'wisdom'. The same applies to the 222 (6x37) verses of Ecclesiastes.

I owe thanks to Klaas Eikelenboom for his constructive suggestions and for having controlled my work.
