

University of Groningen

Integration in schools

Stark, T.H.

IMPORTANT NOTE: You are advised to consult the publisher's version (publisher's PDF) if you wish to cite from it. Please check the document version below.

Document Version

Publisher's PDF, also known as Version of record

Publication date:

2011

Link to publication in University of Groningen/UMCG research database

Citation for published version (APA):

Stark, T. H. (2011). Integration in schools: a process perspective on students' interethnic attitudes and interpersonal relationships. [Thesis fully internal (DIV), Rijksuniversiteit Groningen]. s.n.

Copyright

Other than for strictly personal use, it is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

The publication may also be distributed here under the terms of Article 25fa of the Dutch Copyright Act, indicated by the "Taverne" license. More information can be found on the University of Groningen website: <https://www.rug.nl/library/open-access/self-archiving-pure/taverne-amendment>.

Take-down policy

If you believe that this document breaches copyright please contact us providing details, and we will remove access to the work immediately and investigate your claim.

Downloaded from the University of Groningen/UMCG research database (Pure): <http://www.rug.nl/research/portal>. For technical reasons the number of authors shown on this cover page is limited to 10 maximum.

Acknowledgements

Thank you Groningen! I've always felt at home here in the very north of The Netherlands. Probably because the inhabitants of Groningen very much resemble Schwaben, the inhabitants of the region where I was born and raised. For example, after a truly remarkable dinner, a "Groninger" might compliment the chef by saying "'t kon minder" (it could have been worse), while a "Schwabe" might compliment by saying "M'r ko's essa" (it was eatable). I'm grateful for the fantastic time I had living here in Groningen. In particular, I would like to acknowledge the following people in a real Groninger way for making the last years such a great experience: 't kon minder!

First and foremost, I would like to thank my first advisor, Andreas Flache. Andreas, I cannot remember a single instance in which you would not support my ideas even if this meant the collection of a six-wave longitudinal study. You always encouraged me to develop my own research interests, no matter how distant they were from your own line of research. Moreover, I could always count on you for coming up with a practical solution to save my project when I thought everything was destined to fail. But most importantly, I want to thank you for sharing your vision on science and on what the truly interesting sociological questions are. Embracing your vision made my life as a researcher so much more exciting, yet so much more complicated!

Thank you Roel Bosker and René Veenstra for being my secondary advisors. You gave me the freedom to develop my own ideas, choose my research topic, and design my own empirical study. Still, you were always approachable when I had questions or needed feedback. Thank you for your inspiring and reliable support. And yes, I promise to all three of you that next time when I write a dissertation with you, I'll pick a topic on which at least one of you has worked before!

During my PhD time, I had the unique opportunity to work with two excellent researchers in the United States. First, I would like to thank Jim Moody for having me as a visiting researcher at Duke University for two months. I learned a lot from working with you and joining your research group. My gratitude also goes out to Jon Krosnick for inviting me twice to work with him at Stanford University. The time with you was incredibly productive, motivating, and stimulating. I cannot express in words how much I value the opportunities you have offered to me, and the encouraging feedback you always gave. I'm looking forward to continuing our collaboration in the future!

Almost always, there are the people behind the scenes that keep an organization (or a research project for that matter) running. I would like to take this opportunity to thank Monique from finances, Karin and Henjo from the repro, as well as Tjebbel,

Jan, and the rest of the porters for their help during the last years. Rafael, thanks for creating this fantastic work atmosphere in our department. Maarten, I'm incredibly grateful that you organized the larger Arnhem project in such a great way that I could focus on my own research and my contribution to the group product. Moreover, I am indefinitely thankful for the support from Toni Britsia and Peter Burgers from the foundation PAS (stichting Primair onderwijs Arnhem in Samenwerking) who not only convinced the primary school principals in Arnhem to participate in my study, but who also always had great ideas and insights that helped me in developing my research program.

I also would like to thank all students who helped me to conduct the Arnhem School Study on which this dissertation is based. During the three years of data collection, I had great help from, Gijs Hu., Wike, Marion, Geerten, Gijs He., Hanne vd. I., Nathalie, Hanne V., Irene, Lieuwe, and Anke. However, I am most grateful for the invaluable help of my assistants Coby and Irene without whom I would probably have ended up with a heart attack.

With regard to the Arnhem School Study, I'm also thankful for the participation of all the students, parents, and school administrators in the data collection. Not to mention all the youth workers and teachers who attended our workshops and provided me with invaluable feedback and fantastic examples.

I would also like to thank a number of colleagues who made the last years so very enjoyable. Jelle, thanks for teaching me Dutch in no time. Without your help, I wouldn't have survived the first year! Thank you Jessica, Miranda, Katya, Alona, and Valeska for your positive (or sarcastic) comments and all the fun we had inside and outside of the department. André, thanks for always being available for practical support and for a lot of nonsense. Most importantly Michael, thank you for your constantly constructive feedback, encouragement, ideas, and your indestructible believe in the quality of my work (especially when I wasn't convinced myself). Thank you for being such a great friend.

Nicht zuletzt gilt mein Dank euch, Wolfgang und Ingrid. Danke, dass ihr jederzeit an mich geglaubt habt und immer einhundert Prozent hinter mir und jeder meiner Entscheidung standet. Ich kann mir keine besseren Eltern vorstellen! Und auch euch, Richard und Marianne, bin ich unendlich dankbar für eure bedingungslose Liebe und Unterstützung. En ja, jij staat hier op de laatste plek, maar dat is zeker niet de plek die je in mijn leven inneemt. Chris, dank je wel voor meer dan vier jaar liefde, ondersteuning, en altijd een goed en verassend idee.