

University of Groningen

The path of most resistance

van Breen, Jolien Anne

IMPORTANT NOTE: You are advised to consult the publisher's version (publisher's PDF) if you wish to cite from it. Please check the document version below.

Document Version
Publisher's PDF, also known as Version of record

Publication date:
2017

Link to publication in University of Groningen/UMCG research database

Citation for published version (APA):
van Breen, J. A. (2017). The path of most resistance: How groups cope with implicit social identity threat. [Thesis fully internal (DIV), University of Groningen]. Rijksuniversiteit Groningen.

Copyright

Other than for strictly personal use, it is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

The publication may also be distributed here under the terms of Article 25fa of the Dutch Copyright Act, indicated by the "Taverne" license. More information can be found on the University of Groningen website: <https://www.rug.nl/library/open-access/self-archiving-pure/taverne-amendment>.

Take-down policy

If you believe that this document breaches copyright please contact us providing details, and we will remove access to the work immediately and investigate your claim.

Downloaded from the University of Groningen/UMCG research database (Pure): <http://www.rug.nl/research/portal>. For technical reasons the number of authors shown on this cover page is limited to 10 maximum.

Acknowledgements

This book marks the end of my PhD-journey, and it would not be complete without a note of thanks and recognition for the many, many people who have kept me alive, motivated, and entertained during the last four years.

First of all, I would like to thank the members of the reading committee and the corona for their valuable feedback on my work and for being present at my defence.

I am also very thankful to my colleagues at the Psychology department in Groningen. You have made a very important contribution to my PhD-years, not only through the role you have played in my work, but also through the serious social component that characterizes life in the group. Friday drinks, Daily Wing journalism, pub quizzes; you are a group of colleagues that's almost impossible to beat. Thank you all; it's been a hoot!

Of course, my PhD-project was a collaborative effort, relying heavily on the brilliance of Sole, Toon, and Russell. Sole, I want thank you for making me so welcome at the uni in Granada, for always including me in your projects and ideas, and generally being a bit of a role model to me. Toon, your ability to stay calm when I am stressed is second-to-none. PhD-life is overwhelming at times, but your support always helped me to see the light at the end of the tunnel. Your knowledge of the plot points of Belgian soap operas will stay with me for life. Russell, thank you for your endless enthusiasm, even though it usually turned out that any great idea of mine occurred to you about 10 years ago. You have taught me more than I can list here, but included are some crucial bits of self-knowledge, such as the fact that my presence is about as difficult notice as the presence of a gorilla, that I should always keep my trivia knowledge in good shape, and have terribly cheap taste in wine. On a slightly more serious note, though, I feel incredibly lucky to have had you three as my supervisors. Your input and support have motivated, inspired, and encouraged me at every turn.

Then there are The Girls: Julia, Maja, Anne Marthe, Felicity, Aafke, Marloes, Darya, Kim, and our honorary member Tomas. Your crazy antics have been the best antidote to all forms of PhD stress. These last years are characterized a number of achievements I am proud of (aside from my PhD), and all of them were cooperative efforts. Together, we have developed successful game shows, including such classics as 'Peach or Ass' and 'Poo or Food'. We started a newspaper under the inspired leadership of Aafke and Felicity, we've gone on camping trips, found Utopia, and roamed around European cities long after midnight looking for food. I am especially grateful to my paranymphteam,

Acknowledgements

Anne Marthe, Julia, and Maja, who have helped me to make my defence day a success. Would I have managed my PhD without you all? I DOUBT IT!

Finally, there is the home front: my family and friends. Natuurlijk is er een speciaal bedankje voor mijn proeflezers, Lau, Berend, en Mam. Bedankt voor jullie wijze en creatieve inzichten. Anne, bedankt voor je verrassend relativerende blik. Over the years, I have relied on all of you for your friendship, love and support, and I was never disappointed. Thank you.

