ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

More than four years have gone by since the day I started working on what has now become my Ph.D. thesis. Many people have been on my side, in different ways, in this wonderful learning experience, both on a personal and a scientific level. This last section is dedicated to some thanksgiving.

Leon, thanks for supervising my work with continuous encouragement and support and for allowing me the time and the freedom I needed to learn from my mistakes. Thanks for your cheerful optimism that has been very important in a few dark hours and for giving me the feeling that you trusted me.

Alex, thanks for being something like an older brother, someone with whom I could share excitement and frustration. Your office has always been a safe place to me, somewhere to walk into whenever I needed to put order into my own ideas, problems and feelings. Even after you moved to Norway, I never really missed you because you managed somehow to make me feel your presence.

Ineke, thank you for giving a good help with the revision of my thesis and of a couple of papers.

Professors Iedema, Schouten and Wesselingh, thank you for accepting the burden of sitting in my reading committee. I am honored that you were called to give the final word on my work.

Wilco, thanks for choosing me as supervisor for your final year research project. Working with you has been for me a wonderful learning experience.

Michele, thanks for teaching me to be an honest and critical thinker in the years we spent together at the University of Napoli. More than any research achievement, this is the second best thing you could give me. The first is your friendship.

Anne, Laurens, Marcel, thank you very much for helping me out with all sorts of technical problems. I often came to your workshop with a sense of defeat and I always went out feeling better.

Heleen, Vincent V., Mariëlle, Sameer, Jasper, Francesca, Marga, Vincent F., Cedric, Mook, thank you for creating a nice atmosphere of companionship. I tremendously enjoyed being your colleague and your friend.

Tommaso, Rom and Luca, thanks for being my best friends in the Netherlands. Thanks for the dinners, the movies, the discussions, the drinks, the laughs, the hangovers, the chocolate cakes. Growing up together with you has been a wonderful experience.

Rina and Carlo, thanks for filling my life with love and affection, for being my best teachers and educators.

Masha, thank you for every single moment we shared. Since the second time I saw you, I have been feeling that I could not ask for more.
