ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Thank you – Bedank – Cảm ơn

This thesis has made a long journey of my life: I traveled away from home and met great people; I found my love; I have laughed so much; I have learnt to communicate myself; I had several stops and restarts; but lastly, I have grown up with the nicest experiences.

Many thanks to my supervisors, colleagues, and friends!

Without your support and encouragement, I could not have gone so far in this academic journey.

And of course, I could not thank my family enough as my heart is filled every time I look back.

With my best gratitude,

Yen Hao Tran
Dear Prof. Bob Wilffert, you are my great supervisor and more. You guided my early steps as a researcher. You encouraged me to think positively. You gave me the freedom to work on my own, but whenever I needed help, you were always behind to keep me on track. You respected my thoughts and opinions. You taught me how to be a good supervisor and how to motivate others when I had my first students. You always smiled and cheered me up at the office. Every day, before leaving home, you always passed by to say goodbye to me and Lisette, whom you called “my first PhD students”. I was very sad when my paper got rejected the first time, but you were there, telling me that you would cross your fingers for me. I was very nervous before giving my presentation at the Berlin conference, but you reassured me that I could make it. You taught me how to play the Dutch board games when seeing me sitting shy during the lab day. You were present at my wedding as a witness, or as a father, I thought. I still kept the nice gifts that you and Jolanda made for my wedding and when I had my first child. I am sorry that you could not walk with me till the end of this journey. I wish that I could turn back the clock to see you once. I am forever indebted to your support and kindness.

Dear Prof. Eelko Hak, thanks for giving me a chance to work under your supervision. Your critical thinking and problem solving competency has impressed me greatly. I have been looking forward to every meeting of our department, just to hear your feedback on the students’ presentations which are so helpful and constructive. I also greatly appreciate your comments and suggestions on my papers which are short and sharp, targeting the issues. I have learnt a lot from you both directly and indirectly. You are not only my supervisor but also a great teacher. This thesis became possible thanks to your help.

Dear Dr. Henk Groen, thank you for walking with me along this journey. I still remember our very first days working together. You taught me how to use SPSS and how to store my analyses. You instructed me how to set up a study design, gave practical suggestions and patiently revised my drafts. You comforted me as my Bob is gone, saying that you would be by my side. I sincerely thank you for your thorough guidance and positive encouragement throughout all the phases of this thesis.

Dear Dr. Nynke Schuiling-Veninga, thank you for spending time coaching me, checking my protocols and reviewing my work. Every time I sent my drafts to you, I knew that they would be substantially improved. I feel so light-hearted because you have come and offered me tremendous support. Thanks for everything, Nynke.

Dear Prof. Lolkje de Jong-van den Berg, you are my first pharmacoepidemiology teacher and my first supervisor as I was a master student. You have oriented my passion in the field of pregnancy and women’s health. I always remember your words ‘Small but fine’, which means ‘Despite the small sample size, the study could be valuable as long as the data were collected correctly and rationally’. Thanks for introducing me to Bob, and for consulting us at the early phase of this project. Without you, this thesis might have never started. With my deep gratitude, Lolkje.
Dear Jens Bos, you are a special instructor. We have known each other for 14 years already. I still remember your bright smile when I was a young master student, knocking at your office for database guidance. Thanks for all practical comments and wise solutions with MySQL. Time flies, Jens. I am glad that you agreed to be a paranymph in my defense. In fact, you have been the paranymph in my academic life.

Dear Dr. Hao Wang, Dr. Jorieke E.H. Bergman, and Dr. Marian Bakker, thanks for consolidating my first steps in this doctoral thesis and for the helpful advice on books that I should read and courses that I should take. You taught me a lot during our project discussions with your practical experience in this field.

Notably, I would like to thank the LAREB team for the helpful information supporting this thesis. Dear Dr. Loes de Vries, thank you very much for clarifying how the LAREB risk classification system works, so that we could refer it to the risk of drugs used during pregnancy. Dear Prof. Eugene van Puijenbroek and Dr. Florence van Hunsel, thank you for revising my thesis. It is significantly improved with your valuable comments about pharmacovigilance and LAREB activities.

Dear the great secretaries of our office, Ms. Jannie Schoonveld and Ms. Yvonne Mettes, thank you for all the support and arrangements that makes us feel like ‘home at work’. Dear Eline, Bert, Sipke and Jugo, thank you for the technical support. Dear Katja, thanks for the funny chats around our working corner. Dear Lisette, Christian, Bianca, Koen, Nelly, Jurjen, Didik, Yuanyuan and Linda, thank you for coloring my life in Groningen. I miss our days making traditional food, basking in the schoolyard, and enjoying BBQ time. Dear Aizati and Doti, we had a wonderful time together. We went on great conferences and enjoyed the nice food. We laughed and talked about whatever a girl could dream of. Thanks for being a part of my PhD life.

Dear my big friends, Hans van Seventer and JoAnn van Seventer-Keltie, thanks for your warm welcome as I was new to the city. I miss our international-café nights with garlic bread and pumpkin soup. I felt like home at your place. Dear anh The Anh, chi Phuong Hong, chi Huong, anh Ngan, chi Mai, anh Dat, chi Nhung, anh Dut, Gia, Thai, Quyen, Luna, and other Vietnamese friends in Groningen, thanks for the beautiful moments that we had been through. Chi Huong Thao, thanks for being a big sister and inspiring my PhD life. Chi Phuong Lan, thanks for comforting me when I missed home. Anh Dang Hat, thank you for helping me unconditionally with the literature I needed and for encouraging me to get on with my academic life.

Sincerely, I would like to thank all the nice teachers and colleagues at my current workplace (Can Tho University of Medicine and Pharmacy) for sharing my workload so that I could have time dedicating to this thesis.

Finally, and importantly, I would like to thank my family who have showered me with endless love and encouragement. Wherever I go to, you are always there, right in my heart ♥
